

Teaching our Students to Live Better Stories

Where do we see stories around us every day?

Parts of a story – narrative plot line

All too often we allow our students to bypass the narrative plot lines in their lives.

When we make choices for our students as opposed to making them struggle with the choices we rob them of the stories that they should and could be living.

Biblical Examples of Story

Peter
Abraham
Noah
Jonah

What kind of story are you living?

What kind of story are our students living?

How do we help our students live better stories?

Share our stories with them – assuming we are living good stories

Have them share their stories

Better stories are created in community

Serve to create better stories

Service opportunities often create conflict and thus good stories

Think outside of ourselves

A story of 1 person does not usually make a good story
